

Redwood County Housing Study

Project Overview

Redwood County is a vibrant and growing community, attracting new residents and businesses each year. As we look at that trend continuing well into the future, it is an ideal time to address housing needs. Our commitment to community, health and wellness, and to economic vitality, includes offering a variety of housing choices and ensuring we are attracting development that meets those needs for our 15 countywide cities, 25 townships and the Lower Sioux Indian Community (LSIC).

The Redwood County Economic Development Authority (EDA) has partnered with the professionals at Bolton & Menk for a comprehensive study to assess housing needs based on an analysis of demographics, market demand, and public input. At the conclusion of the study, we will have a clear understanding of housing needs, along with a set of recommendations on how best to meet those needs.
